

Leading US physical therapy clinic to open in India

One of the best known physical therapists in the United States is bringing her specialized clinic to Mumbai, India. Dr. Karena Wu is known for her appearances on Dr. Oz, Fox News, CBS and more. Her patients in New York City best know her as someone who excels in her assessment and her application technique in skilled manual therapies, joint mobilizations, soft tissue mobilizations, kinesiology taping, instrument assisted soft tissue mobilization and Pilates based rehabilitation.

Dr. Wu recognized a lack of top notch therapies in India, especially when it comes to high level assessment and appropriate therapeutic techniques. Dr. Wu said, "Once I heard that there was a lack of treatment options in India I knew I had to help. We want the people in Mumbai and the surrounding areas to have the same access to care that we have here in the U.S."

ActiveCare Physical Therapy will offer concierge level out patient orthopedic rehabilitation. The clinic is modern and open and spacious. It's sits right next to a diagnostic imaging center and opposite Siddhivinayak Temple in the classy and wealthy Prabhadevi neighborhood.

The clinic, which opens the week of April 2, 2017, offers specialized physiotherapy services that emphasize manual therapies, specialized instrument therapies and Pilates based rehabilitation. It is the first clinic in India to offer services of this level.
